Answer

MINISTER OF STATE FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT (SHRI ANNASAHEB M. K. PATIL)

(a) Yes, Sir. Reforms have been introduced in the rural drinking water supply sector to institutionalise community participation in the rural water supply activities to ensure long term sustainability of the systems and sources used for providing drinking water supply in rural habitations. These reforms are implemented in a project mode and 63 districts in 26 States have been identified by the State Governments for implementing these Sector Reform Projects on pilot basis. Under these projects, the community is required to actively participate in planning, sanctioning, part funding, implementing, operating & maintaining and managing the rural water supply schemes of their own choice.

(b) & (c) A statement giving the list of pilot districts and the funds allocated for these districts towards implementation of the project is annexed.

(d) A few States including Madhya Pradesh have requested for additional districts to be taken up under the reforms.

(e) 63 pilot projects have been identified in the first phase of implementation of reforms. Additional proposals received are returned to the States with the remark that these could be considered during the second phase.
